

GRIP LIKE A GECKO

The gecko's ability to cling onto almost any surface has to be admired. Every square millimetre of their little footpads contains 14,000 tiny hairs, each of which branches out into 500 invisible microscopic spatulas. These spatulas harness Van der Waals force on a molecular level to produce a grip so strong it could lift over 130 kg. Pretty impressive stuff. But why are we talking about geckos? Well, at Volvo we appreciate good grip. That's why we spend so much time testing our tyres. All Volvo tyres are selected to suit individual Volvo models and rigorously tested for rolling resistance, wear and tear and how they react to the surface beneath them, whether it's wet or dry. They may not help you climb walls like a gecko, but they'll help you stick to the surfaces that matter most.
